Owner

Purpose

This policy defines which business expenses may be reimbursed and the documentation required for reimbursement.

Eligible Expenses

Reasonable expenses incurred for approved business activities may be reimbursed. Examples include business travel, customer meetings, approved training, and necessary business supplies.

Receipts

Employees must retain itemized receipts for reimbursable purchases. A receipt should show the merchant, date, items or service, and amount. Missing receipts require an explanation and may require manager or Finance approval.

Approval

Expenses must be submitted through the approved expense system within 30 calendar days of the transaction unless a documented exception is approved. The employee's manager is responsible for confirming business purpose and budget availability.

Travel

Airfare, lodging, local transportation, and meals may be reimbursed when travel is approved in advance. Employees should use company-preferred vendors when available. Personal upgrades and unrelated expenses are not reimbursable.

Non-Reimbursable Items

Personal entertainment, traffic or parking penalties, unauthorized upgrades, personal purchases, and expenses for family members are generally not reimbursable.

Audit

Finance may request supporting documentation or review expenses for compliance. Repeated policy violations may result in reimbursement delays or additional approval requirements.
